

Hey Gia,

I enjoyed reading your project. There are ideas that are left open. One of them is in Chapter 1 when you talked about how we try to conform to society's expectations and should investigate God's word to embrace compassion and connection. I was thinking about how those two correlate. Then you hop into your wondering about the word 'fear.' It leaves the readers needing clarification about the flow of the chapter and its ideas.

There is an unsupported claim in your writing project. It is, "As we savor its verses, we can find solace and inspiration, drawing from its wisdom to navigate our unique journeys." Consider explaining it or adding a citation. You can use a bible verse that supports the claim or other resources that are similar in content.

You mentioned grammar errors. There are phrases you should remove or change and wording in some sentences. Also, there are missing commas and articles.

Your project has a few errors. That is good. I hope my review can help you. If you have any questions, send a Folio email to me.

Sincerely,

Evelyn Sanchez

From	"Te'ara Marshall" <tmarsh42@georgiasouthern.desire2learn.com>	Received	Jul 12, 2023 5:21 PM
To	"Gia Rushing" <grushing@georgiasouthern.desire2learn.com>		▶ Show course offerings
Subject	WRIT 5520 - Peer review

Hello, Gia! I will immediately say your writing is clear and insightful. I don't have many suggestions as far as grammar. Maybe reviewing your work and considering how you would receive it or making sure it aligns with your goal. Consider how you want the reader to feel afterwards. After reading, I thought it was interesting but it did not necessarily stay on my mind. I am currently out of town at a conference, so that could be why. But maybe adding a question for readers to consider after each chapter. Is it meant to be devotional based? I know some include a guided prayer afterwards or even encouraging journaling afterwards. You gave us this information, now what? It's insightful and easy to digest so just ensuring that you don't lose that attention is helpful. Good work!